

Interactive comment on “No way out? The double-bind in seeking global prosperity along with mitigated climate change” by T. J. Garrett

R. Fowles

richard.fowles@economics.utah.edu

Received and published: 8 June 2011

Although most economists might not be convinced by this article, it is my impression that most would not be convinced by any article (or hypothesis) that did not conform with their prior beliefs. Sadly, many economic propositions are based on tautological reasoning or accounting identities. What is refreshing is to see a posited hypothesis relating to economic growth that is, in principle, verifiable.

Interactive comment on Earth Syst. Dynam. Discuss., 2, 315, 2011.