

Dear Editor,

We are delighted to hear your decision and have edited the manuscript as detailed below in blue. We note one further technical correction which has been performed in the revision of this manuscript. Namely, upon reading the in-house guidelines for figure titles we realised we had capitalised all words in figure titles as opposed to just the first word and proper nouns. This has now been corrected, and no other changes have been made to any figure. We thank you for your guidance, support and the time you have invested throughout this review process.

Best regards,

Emma Holmberg on behalf of all co-authors

On line 145 your using the symbol Theta, but Theta is first defined on line 154. All symbols have to be defined at first usage.

Thank you, this mention of theta was removed.

On line 146 you mention multiple hypothesis tests and Wilks. I am assuming that you are using the False Discovery Rate; if that is the case then you should state this and not call this just a correction.

Thank you, we have amended the manuscript accordingly.
